1. Introduction

’Seldom Heard?’ - Involving and Consulting Hard to Reach Patient Groups is a report written for the North Bristol Hospitals Trust (henceforth NBT). NBT has objectives to develop a strategy/action plan engaging with a range of statutory and voluntary sector partners to promote engagement with user groups, including those which it has defined as ‘hard to reach’, and to regularly review progress against this strategy/action plan.

In March 2010, NBT commissioned Minotaur Communications, an independent research and management consultancy, to carry out a SWOT analysis and develop an action plan in relation to involving and consulting ‘hard to reach’ equalities patient groups. This report presents the findings relating to these objectives.

2. Definitions

For the purposes of this report ‘hard to reach’ or ‘seldom heard’ equalities patient groups are defined as groups relating to:

- Age (Children and Young People and Older People)
- Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (henceforth BAME)
- Disability
- Gender
- Gender Identity (henceforth Trans)
- Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual (henceforth LGB)
- Religion or Belief

(Source: Equality and Human Rights Commission)

The project management team agreed to include the following communities and groups within this definition: Roma Gypsy/Irish Travellers, Language, Women’s Health/Men’s Health, Learning Difficulties/Learning Disabilities, and Mental Health.

- Consultation – the definition of Consultation within the purview of this project is; any formal consultation, engagement or involvement activity carried out with ‘hard to reach’ or ‘seldom heard’ equalities patient groups.

3. Aims

- To map what consultation/involvement exercises have been carried out since 2005 with hard to reach groups within NBT and externally.
- To carry out a SWOT analysis on NBT services engaged with this hard to reach activity.
- Determine how the outcome of this work has influenced NBT policies, action plans etc. within a directorate, department or Trust wide.
- Identify best practice and make recommendations to NBT.
- Draw up an action plan to support the development of the Patient and Public Involvement Strategy an Equalities work based on the findings and on best practice identified.
- Provide final report and recommendations on how to involve and consult hard to reach patient groups within the purview of the Patient and Public Involvement Strategy and Equalities work. (Henceforth PPI).
4. Methodology

Between March and July 2010 interviews were carried out with service managers and staff including:

- 10 x face-to-face interviews with health service managers and staff across (Bristol and South Gloucestershire) NHS Trusts (first round interviews).
- 10 x face-to-face interviews with service managers and staff across the (Bristol and South Gloucestershire) voluntary sector (first round interviews).
- 10 x telephone interviews with service managers and staff from statutory and voluntary sector health organisations (second round interviews, identified from first round interviews).
- A total of 30 interviews.

5.0 Consultation Mapping

The following consultation and engagement activities provide a snap-shot of activities across the sub-regional health community during the period 2005-10. This does not represent all of the engagement activities, but provides a mapping of examples of activities over the last five years. Consultations have been broken down by equalities strands including; Generic Equality and Diversity, Age, BAME, Disability, Gypsy and Travellers, LGBT, Religion or Belief, and where consultations have taken a cross-cutting equalities approach.

5.1 Consultation Mapping – Generic Equality and Diversity

- ‘Count Me In’ demographics of users including equalities groups. (2009) A snap shot of services from an equalities point of view, and equalities monitoring. Contact: Hildegard Dumper, Bristol Community Health (email) Hildegard.Dumper@bristolpct.nhs.uk
- Annual Patient Satisfaction Survey. Each service each year carries out a patient satisfaction survey, includes an equalities monitoring form. Contact: Hildegard Dumper, Bristol Community Health (email) Hildegard.Dumper@bristolpct.nhs.uk
- Bristol Health Services Plan (BHSP), (2005-06) Consultation on the Bristol Health Services Plan (Bristol and South Gloucestershire). A reconfiguration of how the health service operates; more community-based hospitals and activity, services being more specialist. Bristol PCT involved in consultation around the BHSP, including sessions on working with seldom heard groups. Contact: Tony Watkin, UH Bristol (email) Tony.Watkin@UHBristol.nhs.uk
- The redevelopment of Cossham Hospital: As part of the consultation for redeveloping services in Kingswood (2006), extensive work was done to engage with seldom heard groups including carers and disabled people, mental health service users, parents with young children/new parents, young people, lesbian & gay people, and black and minority ethnic communities. For more information on this project, please contact Paul Frisby (paul.frisby@sglos-pct.nhs.uk). Following this formal consultation, the project to redevelop Cossham Hospital has continued to work with and involve local people and public representatives in the project.
- Joint Strategic Needs Assessment (2009). NHS South Gloucestershire and South Gloucestershire Council consulted the public in South Gloucestershire on how to ensure people of all ages can enjoy good health and well-being. The consultation focused on the changes that happen in people's lives – for example, children growing into adults, becoming a carer, losing a job, retiring or bereavement – and aimed to find out what kind of support people need at these times. It also looked at how people access services and any inequalities in the levels of health enjoyed by different sections of the community. The results have fed into the Joint Strategic Needs Assessment (JSNA), a document which will be used to shape decisions about how care services are planned and delivered in the future. The consultation team asked for people's views at a wide range of events and locations, including shopping centres and festivals, and gave people the opportunity to feed back in a variety of ways. Contact: Louise Winn, NHS South Gloucestershire (email) Louise.Winn@sglos-pct.nhs.uk

- Out of Hours Review: As part of our current review of out of hours, we have canvassed the views of stakeholders including the South Gloucestershire Black and other Minority Ethnic Communities Liaison Group to hear about people's experiences of current services and ideas for future improvement. Contact: Louise Winn, NHS South Gloucestershire (email) Louise.Winn@sglos-pct.nhs.uk

- Feedback from people in custodial services: South Gloucestershire Patient Advice and Liaison Service is working in partnership with the South Gloucestershire Local Involvement Network (LINk) and the Independent Complaints and Advocacy Service (ICAS) to develop a way for people in custodial services in South Gloucestershire to provide feedback on their health services. Workers from each agency visited the health centre at Eastwood Park Prison, spoke to the women prisoners and asked them about their health services and how they think they could feedback effectively to LINK, PALS and ICAS. The health services manager and health centre practice manager support this work, which will develop over the course of 2010. Contact: Louise Winn, NHS South Gloucestershire (email) Louise.Winn@sglos-pct.nhs.uk

6.0 SWOT Analysis

6.1 Strengths

- Good personal contacts within BAME communities, religious minority communities and within local equalities groups for women and older people, to promote opportunities, contact and involve groups.

- BAME communities well represented in Patient & Public Involvement consultations.

- Chinese community organisation strong, especially in South Gloucestershire.

- Work with Somali community, especially NHS Bristol, especially with Somali women.

- Disabled people and communities well represented in Patient & Public Involvement consultations.

- Building up a reputation as an organisation which is interested in the views and perspectives of a range of stakeholders, including patients from a variety of communities.

- Feedback from consultation, engagement and involvement activities demonstrate that people appreciate the opportunity to have their voices heard.
• Making links with people, especially with communities.
• Excellent work with LGB & T communities by NHS Bristol
• Raised awareness of equalities monitoring (e.g. ‘Count Me In’), Bristol Community Health.
• When you show energy, enthusiasm and commitment, community groups will really work with you.
• Community empowerment.

6.2 Weaknesses

• Some areas of work consultation is strong, other areas it’s weak
• Duplication of work
• Work not being “joined up”
• Daytime consultation meetings and events – creates inaccessibility
• Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual communities and groups under-represented in PPI
• Women’s health under-represented in PPI
• Men’s health under-represented in PPI
• Religion or belief – very little specific PPI, sometimes added on to BAME
• Difficult to engage with Religion or Belief groups
• Trans communities and groups – no specific PPI
• Difficulty engaging with young people
• How young people are treated, especially in primary care
• Hospital food (not culturally relevant, especially to the Sikh and Black African Caribbean communities)
• Hospital food (patients not knowing they have choices)
• Only delivering (resources) in English
• Some groups are easy to access, others are ‘harder to reach’
• Deaf community under-represented
• Getting information out about what’s available.. “I didn’t know that (service) existed”
• Does this represent systematic, ongoing engagement and involvement with (hard to reach) such communities?
  “Whilst, as individuals, we often have ongoing dialogue and communication with individuals from “hard-to-reach” communities, it might be going too far to say that this represents systematic, ongoing engagement and involvement with such communities.”

• The time (in terms of human resource capacity) which it takes to arrange an activity/event/initiative.
• Demonstrating tangible and/or measurable outcomes as a result of engagement is difficult.
• Encouraging people to get actively involved.
• Seldom heard communities don’t necessarily speak to each other.

• Very little participation from young people.

• Everything is often paper based with consultations, this is not always accessible.

  "It is sometimes difficult to get NHS organisations on the same page at the same time, so that we are still undertaking many individual initiatives, rather than joining them up ... the public sees us as “The NHS”, rather than as individual NHS organisations...”

6.3 Opportunities

• NBT/UHB/PCT/BCH doing more together, cross-cutting partnership approach to Equality & Diversity PPI

• Planning and coordinating PPI consultations across local NHS

  “For example, one of us could go and meet with Dhek Bhal, on behalf of the partners (the local NHS) and talk about what issues and barriers the group wants to raise, which could be of relevance to other NHS Trusts. Rather than having four different people having appointments with the group in one month and then never hearing from any of us for a year. We could all be a bit more co-ordinated in terms of how we’re engaging and how we’re informing others. I think we need to map out who are the people we are actually engaging with, and where the gaps are. It is also important to consider best practice from other areas.”

  “It’s a finite community we are working in and we’re all doing similar things. The worse thing that could happen is on a Monday UH Bristol with Dhek Bhal, on a Tuesday NBT is with them, and on a Wednesday NHS Bristol is with them, and then they say “it’s not joined up”. I know we do joint work, we do things together, I think we can work together more, and plan a bit better.”

• Champions representing each equalities group/all seven strands at board level

• Ambassadors within communities

• One website portal across the local NHS

  “We have talked before about having some information on the Bristol Health Services Plan website. It’s almost like we need a portal where we can share what we are up to, like a diary of what is coming up, so you could click onto the diary and Bristol are meeting with a group, we could either join up with that or ask them to feedback on any issues. That’s where we need to get to.”

• Communities value services going out to them e.g. outreach

• Focus groups/open space events – what needs to be done differently?

• Coordination and consolidation of activities

• BAME, gypsy & traveller communities, young people, mental health, learning disability, learning difficulty improving PPI

• Community radio good at reaching hard to reach (especially) BAME communities and groups
• Asian speaking peer education needs resourcing
• Community language interpreters
• BSL interpreters
  “The BSL Forum are working with staff at NBT looking at access to BSL interpreters that are trained to a specific level to be able to deal with health language, obviously it’s really complicated, a lot of health terms can be quite hard to understand, and trying to translate that into sign language needs to be very accurate and clear rather than just directly translating a word, and that’s come up that interpreters aren’t always trained to that level and that’s come up a few times with interpreters as well, there are sometimes specific health terms that aren’t being interpreted very well. Also the access to interpreters for community languages, people are not always aware that they can do that.”

• Marketing campaigns on buses
• PPI consultation events in rural communities
• PPI Forum e.g. LINk’s
• Morning, afternoon and evening PPI meetings and events, improving accessibility
• Building relationships with commissioners e.g. LINK’s
• Information available in a variety of formats
• Regular Equality & Diversity training for all staff covering all seven equality strands
• Raised awareness of equalities monitoring amongst patients and staff
• Equality Update quarterly newsletter coordinated on behalf of local NHS partners by Bristol PCT/BEHP

• Customer Service Experience Project
• More coordination by the PCT of efforts to consult and involve, avoiding consultation fatigue, but also developing long-term and trusting relationships with communities
• Financial incentives to encourage people to take time out of their busy lives to engage
• Demonstrating a direct link to show how patient engagement/involvement has impacted on the way services are delivered.
• Reach hard to reach through front line workers, make much better use of that.
• A seamless ‘joined up’ service, if anyone is out there doing an event, bring it back to the partnership.
• Raising awareness of different equalities issues.
  “The need to engage with a wide range of patients, and the feedback from patients which we have received, has improved our understanding of how we are generally perceived as one NHS. This has opened up opportunities for better joined up working around community engagement and communication.”

• Listening to people is what it’s all about.
“Listening as organisations. Bristol is rich in information about different experiences of different communities, pouring in all the time. Really listen and act on this, not doing this as fast and as well as we could. What are the gaps, partnership/joined up, share information. What is harder is to reach within the organisations, make sure our organisations are hearing and responding, to push through issues and concerns in the right way.”

6.4 Threats

- Budget, Resources and Time
- Difficulty in getting people involved in PPI
- Concerns around accessibility
- Having carried out consultations, delivered reports, communities yet to see changes
- Time it takes to trickle down
- Large rural area (e.g. South Glos.)
- ‘Hidden’ hard to reach/seldom heard groups within the community
- This type of work is often perceived as an add-on or burdensome: the responsibility of someone else and an inconvenience in terms of real (and highly-pressured) jobs
- Attitudes and resources
- Raising and maintaining the level of awareness required by policy makers and practitioners if services and functions are to result in equitable access and health outcomes, regardless of personal characteristics.
- NHS workers are still fearful about being perceived to “favour” one community over another.
- Getting people to understand that we have legal duties to eliminate the type of built-in discriminatory practices and outcomes that have accumulated over decades or centuries is still a difficult task.
- Training has a potentially significant role to play and the continuing challenge for equality and diversity training programmes is how to make it relevant to each individual’s job (bespoke approach), whilst making it practically deliverable and affordable (mass production approach).
- Human resource capacity to engage with and involve communities on an ongoing basis is a challenge for the PCT (this applies to all, not just “hard to reach” community engagement).
- PPI functions have an essentially advisory role, so the responsibility is supposed to lie with policy managers/officers and practitioners.
- The tick box culture, this work needs to be meaningful and not just about ticking a box.
- Disabled and elderly people often don’t fit into the definition of “equalities” groups.
- Getting access to the people we want to speak to, especially in the context of People with Learning Difficulties and Learning Disabilities.

“There’s a threat of not feeding back to people, people think they raise an issue and making sure that people don’t think it’s just going into a black hole. It’s important that people are fed back to, even if for various reasons things can’t change. I think that’s a threat, just making sure we keep on top of that, that we’re not disempowering people.”

7.0 Influence on policy

The following are comments from interviews in respect of the influence consultations with ‘hard to reach’ equalities patient groups have had on both NHS Trust and voluntary and community sector action plans and policies.

7.1 NHS Trusts

- Helped to identify or refine the actions we need to take in order to eliminate discrimination and promote equal access to services and jobs.
- Helped to evaluate the effectiveness of the actions we are taking and identify any gaps in these actions.
- Enabled us to check and revise our priorities and actions in our Single Equality Scheme and action plan.
- As a trust, we are appreciating more and more the importance of involving service users from different backgrounds in the design and planning of services.
- Positive response from community groups.
- Building up a reputation as an organisation which is interested in the views and perspectives of a range of stakeholders, including patients from a variety of communities.
- By listening, enabling communities, organisations are getting information in that way, organisations can act immediately either through provision of services, or through commissioning.
- NBT Trust Board has an agenda item for the LINk where questions can be raised.
- Health Trusts appointed Equality and Diversity Managers.
- ‘Count Me In’ has validated approach and identified gaps.
- Patient and Public Involvement Strategy shaped the way NBT involved patients and is more inclusive.
- Acting immediately on anecdotal feedback.
- Foundation Trust status has an action plan, including consulting with hard to reach groups, influencing how we went forward as a Trust.
- Consultation changed the PALS policy/complaints procedures within the Trust.
- The Maternity and New born services review in 2007, informed the Trust Board.

On developing the South Gloucestershire Carers Strategy.

“The feedback we got from the (BME carers) event is now feeding into our new Carers Strategy, and that will make a difference in terms of the services we commission for carers. On the ground, what people are saying, it does feed into strategy, policies and implementation. Services that we commission and the choices that people have of the services that they want to receive, will add to the range and choice of services.”

On the Maternity and New born services review (2007).

“I would say the Maternity review, apart from the standard targets that had to be included to move forward, that the majority of it was directly influenced by what we were told by local people. That has been continued, and their involvement has been continued. In terms of PPI that was a fantastic piece of work. We went to existing groups, we invited people to meetings, there was a whole range, it was left really open, there were telephone conversations, we did some work with some sex workers, with people with HIV, there were lots of confidentiality issues, any which way we could speak to people we did.”
7.2 Voluntary and Community Sector

- The issues and concerns that have come out through the engagement work have been fed into the work plans for those working groups to work on.
- Identified gaps in mental health services, breaking down some of the stigma around mental health.
- Increased the number and diversity of participants.
- Working with NHS to ensure people are able to get translations, people can now ring their GP’s and ask for translations and they will get it.
- Recommendations from the mental health report will be taken as part of the assessment by the Local Authority on commissioning better and improved mental health services.

8.0 Case Studies

The following case studies are examples in other areas where NHS Trusts have joined together in a partnership approach to consultations with ‘hard to reach’ equalities patient groups.

8.1 NHS North East takes a partnership approach to deliver an effective Single Equality Scheme

NHS North East has worked together across all of its 23 organisations to develop a single equality scheme framework. A working group from an equality network developed a framework and priorities which have been used by individual trusts to guide local actions. Huge benefits have accrued including avoiding duplication through sharing data, skills and expertise, and undertaking joint consultation and involvement activities.

A performance framework of high level actions has been developed as part of the scheme. This will be monitored across all trusts by NHS North East. Progress on equality data collection is one of the actions and all trusts in the region are encouraged to report on progress on equality issues annually to their Boards. This helps to raise the profile of equality to secure resources for the work. An equality impact assessment toolkit is available for all trusts to use.

The Trust held a conference for staff across the region and commissioned a third sector group to provide feedback from the community on the single equality scheme.

8.2 Birmingham takes a partnership approach with the ‘Be Heard’ Consultation Database

‘Be Heard’ brings together views, comments and opinions collected through public consultation undertaken by Birmingham City Council and all of the organisations making up Be Birmingham.

To visit the database https://www.birminghambeheard.org.uk

Be Heard is made up of representatives from the following organisations Cultural, Children and Young People, Environmental, Economic Development, Health and Wellbeing, City Housing, Safer Neighbourhoods, Advantage West Midlands, Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, Birmingham Voluntary Services Council, Job Centre Plus, Learning and Skills Council, Primary Care Trust, West Midlands, onurbation Resilience Forum, West Midlands Police. The Local Authority Chief Executive, Deputy Leader and Opposition Leader also sit on the Executive Board, as well as a community sector representative. The Government Office for the West Midlands are observers and BRAP (Birmingham Race Action Partnership) act as advisors.

8.3 South Birmingham PCT appoint a new GP provider

When South Birmingham PCT needed to appoint a new GP provider, they wanted to get the perspective of patients to ensure they made the best choice. Patients were invited to establish a panel to advise on setting up the new practice. Two representatives of the patients’ panel also joined the PCT project team for the appointment of the new provider.

The PPI manager provided them with support throughout the process, from agreeing the service specification to interviewing potential providers and making a recommendation to the PCT board.

The panel received feedback on the tendering process and agreed how it would work with the new provider. Patients were also involved in choosing a suitable new site for the practice.

8.4 ‘Walkabout’ – it’s easy to reach the ‘hard to reach’

Walkabout is an innovative method of engagement in the form of a half-day walk around an area. Piloted in Bristol and South Gloucestershire at Gypsy and Traveller sites. This is now being developed in North Somerset to visit specified Black & Minority Ethnic (BME) community organisations and/or other ‘hard to reach’ communities, such as drug & alcohol service user community events.

8.5 Reaching Out Linking In

A project to help equalities communities and ‘seldom heard’ equalities groups to influence policy and service delivery of public bodies more effectively. It is also about improving the support that they get from voluntary sector infrastructure organisations. Although the project works across all equality strands the focus is on work with BME communities; disabled people and groups; and work with vulnerable people living in isolated rural areas. The project operates in South Gloucestershire, B&NES and North Somerset with a part time development worker in each area. The three main delivery partners are CVS South Gloucestershire, DEVELOP (in Bath &North East Somerset) and Voluntary Action North Somerset. There are three specialist advisory partners – Black Development Agency, Community Action and Somerset Racial Equality Council.
